About Us

hackPHS is a high school hackathon in Princeton, NJ that brings a 24-hour hackathon experience to 200+ high schoolers. In 2018, hackPHS had around 40 project submissions, both hardware and software, from over 200 attendees coming from over 60 schools around New Jersey. Our gender ratio was about 30%, 12% above the average in CS related fields. This year, we want to keep the momentum and continue growing; we're looking to achieve 250+ attendees and a 50% gender ratio. We're looking to cater to a diverse group of hackers of varying backgrounds and skills from all across the tri-state area. Check out last year's hackathon here:

What is a hackathon?

Not to be confused with the illegal form of hacking, hackathons are collaborative events for anyone with an interest in technology to build and share an original project over a 24-hour period.

Why sponsor?

Becoming a sponsor of hackPHS offers you the opportunity to make your impact now on the programmers of the future. Many students are first introduced to computer science skills in high school, so you have the opportunity to access a big pool of students to both give your brand a larger consumer base and to promote valuable skills among the next generation.

Where will your money go?

Your money will be going into paying for our venue, food, swag, prizes, and all the other details needed to run a hackathon.

Other ways to help!

Monetary donation
Sponsor a meal
Sponsor a mini-event at hackPHS
Provide hackers with tools/resources to use at the event (e.g hosting, domains, hardware)
